

Press Release - Price Heneveld LLP Names New Partner

Grand Rapids, Michigan, January 6, 2017. Price Heneveld LLP, West Michigan's largest boutique intellectual property law firm, announces the promotion of Gregory A. Lewis to partner.

Gregory Lewis is a registered patent attorney with over ten years of patent counseling, prosecution and litigation experience in private practice at Price Heneveld LLP and at his former firm, Jenner & Block LLP. On any given day, Greg is likely working with inventors in preparing U.S. patent applications, rendering legal opinions, responding to office actions, interviewing patent examiners, and working with foreign patent associates. In sum, Greg counsels and advocates on behalf of his clients. Greg also relies on more than eight years of engineering experience in medical device, nuclear reactor and materials engineering at Medtronic, Inc. and Lockheed Martin, Inc. These experiences help him stand in his clients' shoes as they work to resolve intellectual property-related issues.

Drawing on his earlier engineering work and education from his clients, Greg's prosecution practice today is aimed at various technologies, including those driven by materials, mechanical, chemistry, optics and other electronic device-related technologies. Greg has also worked on various patent litigation matters related to automotive safety devices, vehicle/digital audio file player integration, adaptive cruise control, piston coatings, refrigerator shelf manufacturing, liquid crystal displays, and poultry loading devices. He makes every effort to bring his litigation experience to bear in prosecuting his clients' inventions and counseling them in their patent-related activities.

Greg graduated from Northwestern University with a B.S. and M.S. in Materials Science and Engineering, and obtained his J.D. from Case Western Reserve University School of Law. He is a current member of the Grand Rapids Bar Association, the American Bar Association, and the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA). Greg is admitted to practice in Michigan, the United States Patent and Trademark Office, and various federal courts.
